COMPUTER LAB

Computer Lab Rules

General

All computer users (staff, students, and others) are expected to be responsible for their own behavior on the computer system, including the Internet, just as they are anywhere else in the college. Users are reminded that their actions can represent the entire college community. This includes materials they choose to access, language they use, ideas they express, and other actions which they take.

Uncertainty

If you are unsure of what to do, for instance in the case of an error message, a website offer, a strange email, a hardware malfunction, etc., ask a lab supervisor. It is better to wait and ask than to take an action by yourself that would compromise the computer, or the network.

No Noise

Noise must be kept to a minimum to avoid causing distraction of concentration. Please do not let your phone ring, and do not have conversations, or listen to music without headphones in the lab. Students are not allowed to access the computer lab when they are scheduled to have other classes.

Air Conditioning

Because the labs are air conditioned, doors and windows must be kept closed. This is also to prevent the insects which can damage the computers.

Equal Access

It is common that there are not enough computers for the number of people who want to use them (more users than computers). In order to ensure that everyone has some opportunity to use the computers, please limit computer use to one hour, if there are people waiting.

In order to manage this process, please observe the following:

- Add your name to the bottom of the list if there is a computer free and note the time you begin using the computer.
- If you are waiting, check if there is someone who has been using the computer for more than one hour. If there is, you may ask this person to leave and if they should leave, then you can use the computer (note the time in the list).
- When you leave, please note the time you had finished. If no one is waiting, you may use the computer for more than one hour.
- When you are asked to leave, you may add your name to the list again if you want to continue using the computer. Please be respectful of your fellow students and help ensure that everyone has a fair chance to use the computers.
- Broken Equipment - Do not try to repair the equipment yourself. If you encounter problems with equipment, you should report this to the lab supervisor.
- Cleanliness - Smoking, drinking, or eating in the lab can damage the equipment and attract insects or rodents and these actions are strictly prohibited. Please keep the lab neat; clean up any mess, use rubbish bins, and leave equipment and furniture properly arranged.

Inappropriate Content

Controversial content (e.g. pornography) is not appropriate in an academic setting. Users should expect that their browsing history will be recorded, and might be examined by system administrators. For more details, see the ICT Policy and sections below on Web and E-Mail Usage.

Account Usage

Each user must have his/her own account. Accounts are not to be shared. This is for accountability and security. You must log out when you leave. Users should not access other people's files unless permission has been given by the owner of the file.

Programs (e.g. Yahoo Chat) may NOT be downloaded and installed from the internet. If you are unsure whether a web page is downloading a program, please ask a lab supervisor. This is for security and uniform lab maintenance. Personal program files may NOT be installed. This is for licensing and security reasons.

Personal work files, such as documents, may be brought into the lab, but must be scanned for viruses prior to use, to prevent system infection. Ask a lab supervisor for details. Hacking (attempting to gain unauthorized access to secured content, violating system policies and/or permissions, creating viruses or propagation, etc.) is prohibited.

Web Usage

Computer users browsing the World Wide Web are expected to avoid offensive materials. Should any user encounter any such material accidentally, they should report immediately to an instructor. Users should expect that their browsing history will be recorded, and might be examined by system administrators.

Users should note that the internet is available to all kinds of people, and that there are many scams and otherwise illegal or immoral activities on the internet. They should be just as cautious of information on the internet as they should be in the streets. Bandwidth is a limited resource. When throughput is slow, you may be asked to cease high-bandwidth activity (e.g. music downloading). to an instructor. Users should expect that their browsing history will be recorded, and might be examined by system administrators.

E-Mail Usage

Computer users should realize that, in their on-line communications, their actions may be interpreted to represent the college community. Therefore, users should not use any rude language, or communicate any offensive ideas.

Users should again note that the internet is available to all kinds of people, and there are many scams and otherwise illegal activity perpetrated through email. Email from unknown persons should be received very cautiously. You are cautioned against giving out your personal information (such as name, phone, and address). It is forbidden to forward chain letters/e-mails. These are defined as any e-mail which states that it should be forwarded to others. These especially include warnings of viruses, worms, security warnings, etc. Such warnings will be sent by system administrators only.
